After finishing construction of the new 53,000 square-foot, IW Clubhouse in August of 2008, management searched for a way to soften their water. Their choices were limited. The City of Indian Wells required an eco-friendly, no salt system. They found the LifeSource System provided an efficient way to deliver clean water to their bars and restaurants while saving on equipment maintenance.

“I found the LifeSource System to be the most efficient and longest lasting system. I believe that in the long run it’ll save us a lot of money.”

Hyatt Grand Champions-Indian Wells Golf Resort, a popular golf travel destination for nearly 20 years, offers two golf courses and four hotel/resorts. The City of Indian Wells, owner of the golf resort, embarked on an ambitious, facility-wide project that added two new golf courses. The project also included the spectacular 53,000 square-foot, Douglas Fredrikson designed, IW Clubhouse.
